Winter, Spring, Summer, Fall.
Every season has a sport.
And in my state of Kansas,
We love to play ball.

Winter

When it's snowin' outside, we're playin' in the gym.
Look at him; he's shootin' the trey.
"Please don't make it," the other team prays,
Well, he made it - right through the rim.

Spring

Winter's over and out comes the sun.
The golfer drives the ball really far.
"Watch out, guys, the ball's comin' hard!"
The crowd looks up. "Hole in one!"

Summer

The summer season is baseball time.
There he goes; he's stealing home.
"He's outta there," the umpire shouted.
"Whew," said the catcher, "just in time!"

Fall

When football's around it's the talk of the town.
The quarterback lobs the ball down the field.
Will the receiver catch it? The quarterback hopes.
He's got it! No flags! Touchdown!

Seasons

Winter, Spring, Summer, Fall.
Every season has a sport.
And in my state of Kansas,
You can always play some ball.
